Who We Are

- 1. Educational Element: By providing a quality education, we help our youth develop critical thinking skills, self-discipline, and resilience. Overcoming academic challenges builds confidence and prepares them for future opportunities.
- 2. Physical Element: Physical health is crucial during adolescence. Our youth live in nurturing homes with a mother and father figure who ensure their nutritional, clothing, and medical needs are met. They also have access to exercise, which strengthens their bodies, reduces stress, and establishes lifelong habits.
- 3. Spiritual Element: Spiritual growth is essential for a fulfilling life. Our youth engage in daily Bible classes, devotionals, and church activities with the Longmont Church of Christ. These experiences foster hope, gratitude, and integrity, providing guidance for those overcoming difficult pasts.
- 4. Emotional Element: Adolescence is a pivotal time for emotional development. On-site counseling offers our youth a safe space to process their feelings, work through trauma, and build healthy relationships. Emotional support nurtures empathy, self-worth, and the ability to connect with others.
